

please remember - when you dismantled att the idea was lower cost. Wrong. Most internet use is by kids for school. Without low cost, my children will be cut off from major access for homework. If your goal is competition allowing the bells to cut out small operators isnt the way. you'll also be cutting jobs to a number of small operators who employ promising young people in this growing field.